The Triple Murder.

CONFESSION OF BODENBOURG.

FULL PARTICULARS.

Bohner Boasts of other Murders.

[Translated from the German for the Monitor.]

We present below the confession of Albert Bodenberg, one of the men convicted for the murder of the Peightal family. The original is written in the German language. This translation aims at giving the thought of the author in as free an English form as the nature of the case can permit; yet only this. The translation aims at fidelity to the original. It should be mentioned however, that the English loses somewhat of the conversational style of the original. All such as may have more satisfaction in seeing the original, can be gratified by calling at the house of Rev. L. D. Steckel. We forbear making any comment. We lay it before an intelligent public, confide in the verdict of their painful reflections!

OPEN CONFESSION.

I, Albert Bodenburg, will confess everything I know concerning this affair, and how it came to pass. I aimed at this thing already at the time of our arrest.

I became acquainted with Charley Moore or Gotlieb Bohner, I know not what his true name is, in the month of August, or the beginning of September. We were together in a boarding house, at Altoona. We slept together in one bed. One evening while lying in bed, we talked together in reference to our earnings during the month, and also what debts we had. When we had pay-day, and our debts paid, we had very little left. What became of his money, and for what he expended it, I know not. I knew for what I had to expend my money. It was the next spring to this that I had come from the penitentiary. I had at this time, no clothes nor money, and to obtain these I had to spend all my spare money. In this way it came to pass, that at no time had I any money. Yet I was contented, because I had employment and health.

THE TEMPTER AT WORK.

One evening Charley said to me, while lying in bed, 'if we had that old farmer's money, then probably we could get along well this winter, after the work stops, and we have no far- ther to come." I said, "what sort of an old farmer is this you talk about?" "O," said he, "I know a German farmer, on the way from Huntingdon to Broad Top, and he has money, in silver and gold." I said, "how do you know this?" "O," said he, "I have been several times at his house during the time I worked at Dudley in the mines. At different times I have gone from there to Huntingdon on foot, and have taken meals at his house. At a certain time while I was there, we talked about gold and silver. The old farmer asked me whether I had seen any gold or silver in this country. I said no. Then he said, I will show you something, but at the time he wished to go for some, a wagon loaded with stones came down the road, and the teamster wanted to talk with the farmer. He went out, and after a good while, came back. In this way he forgot to show me the gold. We did not get on the subject again. I am sorry that I did not remind the old man of it. Perhaps I could have found out where he had the money."

This is what Charley told me: I said, "how much do you think he has?" "O," he said, "he undoubtedly has from two to three thousand dollars, perhaps more. I said, "I do not believe this, Charley, for a farmer will not keep so much money in the house, for he is wise enough to put it in the bank." "No," said Charley, "I know that he has as much, at least in the house." I said to him, "I do not wish to dispute, as I know nothing about the man."

WHO SHALL BE THE VICTIM?

Some time now elapsed, during which nothing was said about this affair. In the month of October, when we were paid off, we had not enough left to buy tobacco. Charley said, "I wish the lightning would strike into such an affair—worked the whole summer, and have no money left to buy a little tobacco! Let us go down sometime, to that old miser, I think we can steal that money." I said, "what if we are caught at it?" "O," said he, "who will catch us at it? I cannot accomplish it alone, some one has to stay outside and watch." I said to him, "you must be the one that goes in, for I am not at all acquainted." He said, "yes, I will." I said, "what sort of an excuse will we make here at the boarding house, when we go away?" He said, "we will tell them that we are going to Harrisburg, so that I may obtain my naturalization papers."

RECONNOITERING.

We went away from there (Altoona) some two or three weeks before this murder took place; we left in the 12 m. train. When we came to the place where the old farmer, Peightal lived, it was dark; we went into the house and sat by the stove; while we were warming ourselves, I did not feel at all comfortable about this thing. After I had thought over it more maturely, I said to Charley, "let us go away." "O," he said, "we have time enough." I still felt uncomfortable. We spoke all in German—the wife could not understand it—she said we should speak English, so that each one in the house might understand it. Charley got angry at this, and said, "I will speak with you after a while so that you can understand it." At this time in the evening we left, and went to McConnellstown, and staid at the hotel until the next day till about 3 or 4 o'clock, P. M. To this hotel came a German, named Smith, he is boss of an ore bank, at Marklesburg. We asked this man for work. He promised us work, but said he couldn't furnish us with a very excellent job. He asked us when we would come to commence. We said we had to go for our clothes first. But Charley had not much of a desire to go to work here, because it was near the house where Peightal lived. He was also afraid it would be more easily discovered, sho'd we rob them of their money. For this purpose alone, (viz: stealing) I had in my mind, but never to murder any of the family. But Charley said to me, as we left McConnellstown, that we could get the money in no other way, but by killing these people. I said, "My God, Charley, are you not afraid of such a thought?" "No," said he, "why should I be afraid of it. There are ever so many killed in war, and I myself, have killed a sufficient number. This is nothing for me." I said, "No, Charley, I will have nothing to do with this thing; I cannot do it, neither is it at all necessary. We can get the money some other way, and thus spare their lives, as well as ours. For it will certainly be discovered, whether any man will see it or not, for one sees it at all events, and he brings all evil, sooner or later, to the light of day. Now, you may do what you please."

THEY BUY PISTOLS.

Thereupon he said, "I will tell you; we have no money any more; we must go back to Altoona, and take up our time so that we may obtain some; then we will buy for each one of us a pistol." We went back to Altoona, and the day after we took up our time. Went to Hollidaysburg and bought each a pistol at four dollars a piece.—After we came back to Altoona I did not again take up quarters at Feiler's boarding house, but went into the family to a German named Charley Kerper, whose daughter I intended to marry. At this place I stayed until we went back to this man Peightal's. Charley came often to my lodgings after we had the pistols, and spoke to me how we were to do this thing and when we would do it. He said, "you need not go along in; you stay outside and watch. I do not intend to kill these people, but I am going to scare them. By flourishing before them these pistols, they will not leave the house but deliver up the money." I said, "Charley, if you secretly have any intention to kill them, I will not go along with you." He swore to me that he did not intend to do so.

GOING TO PEIGHTAL'S.

Thereupon the Monday evening following we started away from Altoona in the 9 o'clock train; this was on the 15th of November. After we arrived here, at Huntingdon, we went on first to the house of this man Peightal; we arrived there at about half after 12 o'clock at night, and went into the barn for the purpose of taking a sleep; all in the house had gone to bed. We laid down and slept in the lower part of the barn. Shortly after daybreak I heard footfalls; it was the old gentleman, who wished to feed his stock.—He came to where I lay and wanted to gather straw and caught hold of my legs. I said to him, he should "be pleased to excuse us as we had been tired and we laid down here to take a little rest." It is very natural that I could not tell him that we came to steal from him; it would have been better however had I told him so. The old gentleman said it was all right and then went away. Then I said to Charley, "do you intend to do this work this morning or this evening?" He answered me that in the day time he could not do it, and we must wait until the evening. Then we went up on the mow and laid ourselves in the hay. This was Tuesday, the 16th of November. We slept there until evening, until it became dark, when we stepped down from the mow and went to the house; the family at this time were sitting down at the supper table. We sat down behind the stove and warmed ourselves. After the family had taken supper they asked us to sit down also and eat. While we were eating, and all the time we were in the house, I felt uncomfortable concerning this matter. These people received us hospitably and we are come with the purpose of stealing. I said to Charley "come, let us go." The old gentleman asked us where we came from, and where we were going. Charley said, "we came from Dudley and were on our way to Huntingdon in quest of employment." I said nothing, for I said to myself, the truth you cannot speak, and lying you are commanded not to do, so I said again, "come Charley let us go."

THEY SLEEP IN THE HOUSE.

After this we went toward the barn and pretended to be on our way to leave the place; but Charley pretended that his feet were sore and he could not walk well. We went into the barn pretending to take a little more rest, for he intended to attend to his work on the same evening. He wanted first however to have the family go to bed. After we had come into the barn, this old man Peightal also came; he saw where we had gone to. He said he didn't like anybody to sleep in his barn, as he was afraid of fire. He said we should come along into the house; we followed him and he gave us a bed for this night. During the night Charley told me in which room the money was, but he said he could not now get in, for when the woman was making a bed ready for us he heard her locking every door. Getting up the next morning Charley was first; after he had washed himself he went to the barn, because the old gentleman was there. I became so much afraid that as soon as I was done washing I followed him out. After I had gone about ten yards away from the house the little boy followed and called me back. He had a pie on a plate in his hand and said "this is your breakfast." I gave half of it to Charley and said "let us go back home to Altoona." He said, "we have now been here this long we can wait yet until this evening."—This was on Wednesday, the 17th of November.

THEY GET SOME LIQUOR.

We then went down the railroad to McConnellstown. Before we came there we came to a store not far from Peightal's farm. Charley wished me to inquire whether we could obtain any liquor there. I went in, and was told that they had none; then said Charley "let us go to McConnellstown." We went there to the hotel where we were at the first time. We drank there, each of us, three or four glasses of cider. Spent a short time there, and then Charley went to the store and bought us something to eat. When he came back again where I was, he bought also a pint of brandy.

Then we left for McConnellstown station; sat down there on a bench outside. I asked an old man when the train went to Dudley; he told me as near as I can recollect "not until the afternoon." Then we went up the road; went into a house a little this side of the store where I had asked for liquor and lighted my pipe. Then we went back to the old place which we left this morning early, viz: to Peightal's place; went however still further on, perhaps ½ or ¾ of a mile. On the left of the railroad was a fire and the railroad men sat around it; they asked us to come also to the fire. We stood ourselves also by the fire and whiled our time away until dark. We had been dinner and this time talked on many different subjects. While we were with these men we spoke to them After they had left us, we spoke again to ourselves how we would transact this matter. I asked him finally, after it was already dark, "how are you going to do it?"

HOW THE DEED WAS TO BE DONE.

"Well," said he, "I have already made so many plans, and I have concluded the best plan to be to kill them all." I told him, "Charley, you have already in Altoona sworn and promised me that you would not kill these people; had you not sworn this to me I would not have come with you. I told you this same thing in Altoona; I mean still to do what I agreed to, but if you mean to do this thing which you have now told me I will start right away back to Altoona, and you can do as you please. I do not want to have anything to do with such a cruel deed." After considering a while he said to me "you need not take part at all in this affair. You stand here on the railroad and keep a look out and if any body comes you will let me know." I told him "only for the purpose of stealing, remember, you can expect my service, and not for anything else." He said, "that is all I wish to do."

So we went on together to the barn. We staid there a short time to see whether the old man Peightal was going to come. Charley said if he would come, he would tie him there, then there will only be the two left in the house, viz: the wife and the little boy. The old man Peightal however came not; then he said to me, "give me your pistol and go to the railroad, and keep a sharp lookout; if any one comes you will notify me." I said, "Yes, I will, but remember what I told you, and what you swore to me." He replied, "yes, and now I swear to you again that I will not do anything different from what we agreed." I said, "so we will spare the lives of these people and our own." I thereupon gave him my pistol, but asked him again "what do you want with my pistol, seeing you have one of your own." "Well," said he, "this is not sufficient, for it is only single-barreled, and as soon as they see that, they will not become as certainly scared as when I flourish two pistols."

ON THE LOOK-OUT.

I went to the railroad to keep watch. This railroad is above 100 yards from the dwelling house.

I walked up and down the railroad mostly on that part of the railroad towards Huntingdon; I spent here a good while before Charley came back again to me. Finally he came; had rather a good sized bundle under his arm; he said, "here is some money" and gave me some paper money into my hand. He told me "it is $125 00, but this is not all, after this, when we have an opportunity I will give you also, gold and silver." He must have miscalculated the paper money; for I had of my own $25, and after I counted I had altogether only $125, consequently it could only have been $100 that he gave to me.

AT HUNTINGDON.

Immediately after we had come to Huntingdon the 10:30 o'clock train came from Altoona. I said to Charley "come let us go to Harrisburgh." Charley would not do this, he said he was hungry and wished to eat something first, moreover; he said he did not wish to stay away so long from Altoona for it would look too suspicious.

We went then into an oyster saloon and ate there. We whiled away our time there until two o'clock, when we started together for the depot and sat there until half after 3 o'clock. Then came a westward train; we went with this train to Altoona. After we arrived there and were about getting off, Charley stepped off first, after he had stepped off, there stood a policeman (or a watchman, (I do not know which exactly). He called Charley back and said he had to go along with him. Then I stepped off and the policeman told me the same thing. I went along with him. Charley sought all along to escape. He pretended the calls of nature were pressing upon him. I went into the room where the lanterns are cleaned. Charley was outside; what was going on with him I know not.—After a while he also came into the room, pretended however to have great pain in his bowels and that he had again to go out. The policeman went again with him along out and staid for a time. Then they came back and the policeman said we should come along. We are going to put you into confinement. Whereupon I asked the policeman for what reason they arrested us. He said to me then, that a telegraphic dispatch was received from Huntingdon, that a family had been murdered there.

AT ALTOONA.

They took us then to prison. The bundle which Charley had when he came away from Peightal's house he opened about half way between that place and Huntingdon, and asked me to carry a part of it. It was too heavy for him alone. He gave me two pocket-handkerchiefs, a shawl, and I do not know whether there was anything more or not. I was to carry this until we came to Altoona, then I was to give it back. He wanted to make a present of it to somebody. I did so; and took the bundle and had it until we were put into confinement in Altoona. Charley had, as he said, a little purse with silver and gold in his bundle, but I did not see it. When we came to Altoona to the place of confinement our bundles were taken away from us. After the policeman had made fire he left, and locked the door. I had a cell for myself, so had Charley. "Oh! Oh!" said he "we are lost; now we will be hung." I said "Charley, Charley! what have you done? You swore to me that you would not kill these people." Then said he "I did not do it, two others did it." These however, I did not see, nor has Charley ever told me how he did it.

TRYING TO ESCAPE.

After a little I heard him cutting with a knife or some other instrument. I asked him what he was doing. He said he would try to see whether he could not get out, but there was no opportunity for so doing. I also tried to do so but I had no knife excepting a small pocket knife. I could not cut with it. I asked Charley whether he could give me a knife; he said he would give me a razor; handed it to me from his cell; I reached out with my hand through the ventillator. The same kind of a place was also in his cell.—Then I began to cut in my cell at a place where men could sit on. This was also at the same time the seat for "private business." Here I worked a hole through to get under the prison. I expected from this place to get thro' to the open ground, in this I did not succeed. After I came down there were several holes but were not large enough to allow me through them to reach the open ground. Charley asked me whether I could get out, I said I would try. Then he said "take this money," and he handed to me a handkerchief with money, how much was in it I know not. I tried then to enlarge the hole in the wall, but it went slowly. By this time I heard some one coming into the prison; he went to one of the cells, also heard him speak to Charley. Then he came to my cell, saw this hole and did not find me; went away and reported, for soon I heard some more coming who tore up the floor. First in Charley's cell then at another place. As soon as I saw that there was no way to escape for me, but I had to surrender to my fate, to which I had come through one or more God-forsaken sinners, I went back upwards, and came into the cell where Charley had been. Here I was shortly after discovered and taken to Charley, who was now in the cell which I had at first. We were now locked together by the hands, and taken to the train and brought to Huntingdon. While sitting in the cars a policeman came and asked each of us, holding up a bundle whether it was ours and we replied, it was.

TAKEN TO JAIL

This was on the 18th of November, coming to Huntingdon. At the depot a very large crowd had collected, who mostly all of them accompanied us toward the prison. I also heard some call out, "hang them." Some also had revolvers. We were however sufficiently protected so that no one could hurt us. Of the gold which Charley gave to me in the handkerchief, three pieces fell out, I took these in my mouth. After coming to jail all our things were examined and everything taken away which we had left. In Altoona the policeman had taken some things already from us. They had taken away from me my watch, a pocket-knife, some keys, also my pocket book with my money. The gold and silver however I left under the floor of the prison. After we had been examined we were locked together again by the hands. I then commenced to tell how this thing happened. When the sheriff heard this, he said it was not seemly that such an honest man as I was should be locked to such a rascal as Charley. He then released me from him, and brought me to a cell. A man then came to me, whom I did not know. I learned, however, since that it was Mr. Lytle, the district attorney. I told him these things, but so far as I could discover nothing of this kind was mentioned at court. This I did not expect, or else I would have told the whole thing myself before the court, at the time I was asked whether I had anything to say that the sentence should not be pronounced upon me.

HE WANTS CHARLEY TO CONFESS.

After we had been for some time in jail Charley told me that two others were concerned in this matter. These two he had met at the time he went to the store in McConnellstown to buy something to eat. This is by no means clear to me for I saw no man besides ourselves. I held it up to Charley daily how he had brought me into misery; he always said "I will see to it that you will be released." Every time I asked, he said "Albert I will yet provide you your liberty." I asked "but how will you go about this thing, it does not look at all like it." But he said "I swear to you that you will still be released, even if it does cost me my life. It makes no difference to me; I do not care for that; I am old enough for it;" all this he promised to me. I had always the impression that he would confess the whole thing before the court, but he he did not do this. Therefore ever since we had our sentence I held it up to him, daily asking him that he might confess, perhaps he could still save me, at least in so far that I should not be hung. So also he promised me to do: in this way did I come to this blindly. It is true, I have worked on the evil way, have merited punishment but not that of death.

THE THEFT AT HOLLIDAYSBURG.

It may be supposed because I have heretofore served a term of one year in the penitentiary that I was capable of committing such a cruel deed. This however is not the case. The way I came into the penitentiary for one year was for theft. Neither have I done this. I bought a lot of carpenter tools from a man in Hollidaysburg. This man had stolen these from a man for whom I worked a short time before. After the work stopped he discharged me. I tried to get some work. I was in this way three weeks out of work, neither had I any prospects to get any. I therefore went to Tyrone, got work there from the Railroad Company as carpenter. I had not a full set of tools necessary for my trade. Before I went to Tyrone from Hollidaysburg I had become acquainted there with a man by the name of Carl Schultz. This man was also out of work, and offered me his tools for sale. I told him I had no money, he said I will sell them to you cheap, I said that may be so. After I had worked a little while in Tyrone I got a sore hand so that I could not work. I went to Hollidaysburg to a friend whom I knew. He said I could stay with him until my hand had become better. I met this man again who before wanted to sell me his tools. He asked me whether I was ready to buy them now. I said I have not so much money with me. I must go back to Tyrone and get some money from boss. I went back and met my boss right at the depot, and I asked him whether he could give me five dollars. He said he would see, and he took out his pocket book, had just five dollars in it. He gave them to me and I went back to hollidaysburg and gave this man $10,00 for these tools. I brought them to the train and as I was starting away I met this same man Schultz. He went in the same train to Altoona, and where he went from there I do not know. The Monday following as I was going to work (we had our work in Osceola, and we usually went with the train at noon). I went to the depot and took the tools along, at this time a train arrived from Altoona and I saw the man for whom I had worked in Hollidaysburg; he came to me and said Albert these are my tools; I said I had bought them. He said I must go along to the Esquire. I went along to the Justice of Peace who told me if I could not find the man from whom I bought the tools I would have to go to the penitentiary for a few years at least.

I was very much alarmed. As these men were on the way to take me to jail in Hollidaysburg I jumped out of the cars in order to gain my release, but I did not succeed. When I appeared before the court the judge said the fact of my jumping from the train was evidence of my guilt. And I was found guilty. I served my term fully and I trust have conducted myself properly during my imprisonment. I left with the full determination, by the help of God never to walk the path of the wicked. Yet after all I fell into bad company. Yet never had it entered my mind to take the life of any one nor have I taken the life of any. God who is omnipotent and omniscient is my witness. If this must be so, I must and am also willing, patiently to submit myself to those who were instrumental in throwing me into this condition, for I rejoice in the lively hope that I die in peace and shall enter the realms of the blest.

WM. LEWIS, HUGH LINDSAY, } Editors.

The "Globe" has the largest number of readers of any other paper published in the county. Advertisers should remember this.

MASSACHUSETTS is prolific of reforms. The last one is a project for providing separate prisons for female convicts, to be under the charge of philanthropic women. This system, it is alleged by those who are agitating its adoption, will do far more than any means yet employed in reforming the class of criminals it seeks to benefit.

☞The February statement of the Public Debt shows a continuing reduction amounting to $3,933,664 39 for the month of January, and a total reduction of the debt since March 1, '69, of $80,649,971 09. The total of the public debt less cash in the Treasury, on the 1st instant, was $2,444,813,288 92. The amount of coin in the Treasury is $101,699,730 77, against $105,969,949 for the month previous.

DEATH OF DR. LIVINGSTONE.—A cable dispatch dated London, Feb. 2d, says that a letter received there from Capt. Cochrane of the Royal Navy, commanding the Petrel, stationed on the African coast, he reports that Dr. Livingstone, the celebrated African traveler, had been burned as a wizard by a chief of the interior of Africa. It is to be hoped that this news as in the former case, is incorrect.

☞There is now on exhibition in the Geological land office at Washington, a sheet of rolled iron three feet long and twelve inches wide, weighing but 3½ ounces. It is thinner than ordinary writing paper, has a fine polished surface, is said to be equal to the best Russia sheet iron, and its evenness and texture is superior to anything ever produced in this country. It was manufactured by Wm. F. Rogers, of Apollo, Pennsylvania.

☞The State Legislature has appropriated to each member $100 for postage in lieu of the franking privilege. This is a swindle on a small scale. Most of the members are not remarkable for letter writing—indeed $100 would pay postage on all their correspondence during their whole lives and leave at least $75.00 to spare. Legislators get a good salary, something like $10 a day—and ought to afford to pay their own postage like other folks.

RETRIBUTIVE JUSTICE.—The election of a negro to fill the place vacated by Jeff. Davis in the United States, would seem to be an act of retributive justice, and both points a moral and adorns a tale. Nearly ten years ago, Senator Davis left the Senate and plunged in the red sea of the rebellion in order to perpetuate the slavery of a race. Now one of that race is elevated to the position that he held, and the seat he occupied. Mississippi repudiated Jeff. Davis and elected a negro as his successor. What greater humiliation can be in store for him?

☞The Currency bill passed the Senate on Wednesday, with amendments, by a vote of 39 to 23. As amended it provides for the issue of $45,000,000 additional banking circulation, and the retirement of an equal amount of three per cent. certificates. The additional issue is to be given to those sections having less than their proportion of currency, and when the $45,000,000 issue is exhausted, a transfer of $20,000,000 is authorized from the States having an excess to those having a deficiency. The removal of banks from States having an excess of circulation to those having an insufficiency is authorized, and the amount of their circulation is not to be deducted from the amount of new issue.—The fourth, fifth and sixth sections of the bill provide for banking on a coin basis.

☞The Huntingdon Globe is beginning to bother itself about the next Senatorial election in this district. It will be bothered a good deal more after the election to know why its party has become so fearfully demoralized and so very unpopular. From this district there will be two Democratic Senators elected at the next election.—Bellefonte Watchman.

How you talk. Bothered indeed! Not a whit of it. If guerrillas and Democrats did unite last fall to send two Democrats to the House, it will take a great deal more such amalgamation to send two Democrats to the Senate next fall. You can make your brags now over the supposed demoralization of the Republican party in Huntingdon county; but the trick of the guerrillas has been too fully exposed to be attempted again. You might have depended upon them last fall, when they blinded the eyes of the good party men to follow in their well-laid tracks, but you cannot expect such a result at the next election. We will keep you and our readers posted of all "programmes" made by your allies—the guerrillas, in the future to work the defeat of the Republican party in our county, and to place Democrats in office over the heads of worthy Republicans. So keep in your traces, Mr. Watchman, and don't jump and clap your hands in such high glee.

The XVth Amendment Passed.

The Georgia Legislature on Wednesday last ratified the Fifteenth Amendment, and made the twenty-eighth State required before the Amendment could become a part of the Constitution of the United States. The following are the States which have ratified:

Alabama—November 16, 1869.
Arkansas—March 30, 1869.
Connecticut—May 19, 1869.
Florida—June 15, 1869.

Illinois—March 5, 1869.
Indiana—May 13—14, 1869.
Iowa—January 20, 1870.
Kansas—February 27, 1869.
Louisiana—March 5, 1869.
Maine—March 12, 1869.
Massachusetts—March 9—12, 1869.
Michigan—March 8, 1869.
Minnesota—January 14, 1870.

Now, for the grand development—whether harmony or discord, prosperity or anarchy, are to follow the inoculation of this element into our body politic. It is entirely too late to argue the question, for that has been done enough already, and whether it is a march of progress, as the advocates allege, or a leap into the dark, as the opponents assert, is now to be determined by the scales of experience. One thing is certain, there is a deep-rooted prejudice in the minds of a large number of the American people against the negro race, which cannot now be trifled with by those who have such great zeal for the black man as to exalt him to the equal of the white man; and which prejudice must be removed before a general good feeling or charity can exist between the two peoples so diametrically opposed to each other in color, at least. The American people may or they may not open their hearts to give the colored man a chance in the track of progress; but the signs of the times would indicate (vide Revels) that the colored man will be pushed forward entirely too speedily for his own good or for the weal of the nation. Those who thus push him forward may have no love for him, but will do so in order to inflame the dormant prejudices of the white man, and entrammel the blacks in a difficulty, the issue of which may lead to more dreadful consequences than can now be imagined. We hope, however, that any such calamity will be averted by the strong arm of the law, if need be, said at all times, by the sober reason of the candid.

MANY of the Western cities, that sprang up so suddenly and flourished for a year or two with a prosperity too brilliant to be lasting, are now utterly insolvent. Galena, Illinois, in 1856, had property to the valuation of over $2,000,000; it is now assessed at half a million, and the city cannot pay the interest on a debt of $200,000.

Fire-proof furniture is the last scientific announcement in Germany. A mysterious deaf girl has been agitating San Francisco. A reporter went to interview her, and while taking down the points he indulged in remarks which would not have been complimentary if she could have heard them. She stood it for some time, but finally emptied the coal-scuttle over him and pitched him down stairs.—He doesn't believe she is deaf.

A wrought iron chimney, 196 feet high and six feet seven inches in diameter, has just been erected in Pittsburgh. Another is to be put up 275 feet high. The plates will be riveted by means of a scaffolding running up inside.

At the last session of Congress, a bill was passed setting apart the old House of Representatives as a sort of national art gallery, and providing that such States of the Union as chose should be entitled to make the offer to Congress of a statue or other work of art commemorating some historic event, or eminent soldier or civilian, to be placed in this hall. Rhode Island has sent the first contribution in the shape of a statue of Major General Nathaniel Greene, of the Revolutionary army.

The remains of the late Mr. Peabody were submitted by Dr. Pavy, a distinguished English physician, to a novel preservative process, which consisted in first injecting all the arteries with a solution of arsenic and corrosive sublimate; and, after the lapse of twenty four hours, with a saturated solution of tannic acid. By these means the softer tissues are actually converted into leather, and decomposition effectually arrested. Into the cavities of the chest and abdomen there was also a paste of arsenic, camphor, and spirit; and the coffin was lined with a layer of animal charcoal.

WHY is it that when a rich man gives a large sum of money to a charitable object his name is telegraphed throughout the country as that of a great benefactor or philanthropist, when that of the poor man who gives according to his means is not deemed worthy of such notoriety? In our opinion the man who works for three or four dollars a day and gives five or ten dollars to relieve the distressed is more worthy of credit and public mention than he who, the recipient of a large daily revenue, gives five hundred or a thousand. Such toadyism is contemptible, but much more contemptible is the motive that prompts a man to shed crocodile tears for personal, business, or political benefit.

☞The annual report for 1869 of the Commissioner of Patents is just finished. It shows that there were 19,271 applications for patents and that 13,986 were issued. Including reissues and designs, 3,624 caveats were filed during the year, and 997 patents have been allowed, but not issued, for want of the final fee. Of the patents granted, 13,442 were to citizens of the United States, 294 to subjects of Great Britain, 91 to subjects of the French Empire, and 59 to citizens of other foreign Governments.—The total receipts of the Patent office for 1869 were $693,645, and the expenses were $486,430.

SPEAKER BLAINE was forty years of age on the 31st ult. The anniversary was the occasion of many congratulations from his personal friends. The President was forty seven in April last, and the Vice President will be forty-seven in March next. It is the first time in the history of the Government when the average ages of the President, Vice President, and Speaker of the House, the first three civil officers of the Government, have been under 45 years.

PENN'A. COMMON SCHOOLS.—From the report of J. P. Wickersham, Esq., State Superintendent of Common Schools, we extract the following subjects of general interest in connection with the Common School system of Pennsylvania. The following are the main points in the report:

During the year there was an increase of 53 districts, 270 teachers, 63 graded schools, 202 school directors, 1 Superintendent, 371 teachers, 15,238 pupils, average number of pupils in attendance 37,971, at a total increase of cost including expenditures of all kind, $785,610,96. The Superintendent also reports the schools as generally in a flourishing condition.

ODD FELLOWS' TEMPLE.—The Odd Fellows of Philadelphia have in contemplation the building of a Temple on a grand scale. A meeting was held at the old Sixth Street Hall on Saturday evening last to further the project. The North American says: It was reported that the lot of ground on the northwest corner of Broad and Spring Garden streets, which is considered a most eligible site, can be secured by the first of April, if $20,000 can be raised meanwhile. The sum of $100,000 is asked for the property, and the terms are one-fifth to be paid down, the balance secured by mortgage, payable in ten years. In size the lot is ample, having a front of one hundred and seventy feet on Broad street, and 205 feet on Spring Garden street. Committees were appointed to ascertain how much money can be raised by the lodges and encampments and to take measures to obtain the lot upon the best terms. In the discussions which ensued on the several propositions, the members spoke hopefully of the enterprise, and believed that a little energy and "push" were the only things necessary to carry it successfully through. A charter has been granted to the association of very liberal powers, and the only thing now needed is the money requisite to secure the lot.

☞They have a genteel way of judicially sending a culprit to another world in France which we commend to the attention of the advocates of the latter in this country. At the recent execution in Paris of Traupman for the murder of a family, the cable informs us, the executioner approached the condemned man and laying his hand on Traupman's shoulder remarked "Thou belongest to me," and without any further ceremony the culprit was placed upon the block and his head severed from its trunk by one blow of the axe. There was no breaking of ropes, no bungling of arrangements, no hauling up the victim half dead to be finished at a second trial, no subjecting the condemned to the agonies of a dozen hells while enduring the red tape of the clerical requirements of the scaffold.

A week or more ago John Dearing, jr., of Milford township, Juniata county started after dark from Patterson to his home, riding one mule and leading another, and while on the way attempted to get off and while one foot was in the stirup, the mule ran off dragging him over a very rough road, through Licking creek which was high and partly frozen, through a pair of bars two of which were up, and into and around the barn yard of his father, in all a distance of over three miles. His clothes were torn entirely off his body, but with exception of a number of bruises and cuts upon his back and head, no serious injury was sustained. This statement, incredulous as it may seem, we are assured is literally true.

A LARGE number of workmen have been discharged from the principal navy yards throughout the country, in consequence of the exhaustion of the appropriations for the Bureaus of Naval Engineering and Construction.

The lawyers of Johnstown are all said to be stockholders in the Co-operative Lie-brary Association in that place. Natural enough.

The revival in the Methodist church still continues. Up to this time over one hundred persons, young and old, have professed belief.

There is a rumor that the devil appeared in a mush-pot, in this place, one evening last week. There are some silly enough to believe that he actually did.

Ten bushels of suckers and cat-fish were caught at one haul in the Juniata, at Mexico, recently. We thought that kind of hauling had been done away with.

It is stated that the liabilities of the Freedom Iron and Steel company at Lewistown, which suspended recently, will amount to one million eight hundred thousand dollars.

A big "lust" at a tannery in Monroe county recently, threw a piece of a boiler weighing over a ton through a roof, breaking twenty joists, and landing it a thousand feet from the place it started.

A brakeman named Jordan Crimmel, of Thompsontown, Juniata Co., fell from the top of a car, near the Lancaster freight depot, and had both legs crushed by the wheels.—Death ended his sufferings in a few hours.

We send this week a number of bills to delinquent subscribers, which we hope will receive immediate attention. We know our subscribers don't intend to get too far in arrears, and that is the reason we are letting them know how they stand, and what we expect of them as our friends.

At a recent donation party at the house of Rev. Mr. Gray, Methodist minister at Duncannon, some rascally wag left a sack of sawdust done up in imitation of flour. The minister did not discover the sell until he had emptied it into his flour barrel, thereby spoiling its contents.

Two young men named Baum and Lloyd of Susquehanna township, Cambria county, were filling timber on Saturday week, and while chopping the same tree, Lloyd's axe flew out of his hands and struck Baum, the blade entering his side between the two lower ribs and penetrating the liver. He cannot recover.

Rev. T. Dewitt Talmage failed to put in an appearance at Hollidaysburg, according to promise; and thought the Y. M. C. A. would take his brother, instead, but the Association told him they didn't want either, but would like very much if he would pay some little bills they incurred.

Rev. William B. Culliss, of Philadelphia, is announced to lecture for the benefit of the Y. M. C. A., in the Court House this Tuesday evening; subject, "Appearances." Mr. C. is said to be an eloquent, instructive and amusing lecturer, and we hope he will have a full house. Tickets, 35 and 50 cents.

Our young friend and former "typo" on the Clinton Democrat, Walter Dieffenbach, who is now studying for the ministry, delivered a sermon in the Lutheran church of this place on Sunday evening last, which was worthy of credit, and gave indications that he has chosen his proper calling.

A son of Rev. Logue, living on Clear ridge Bedford county, was killed on the morning of the 1st inst., by his horses running away. It seems that by some means they became unmanageable, and in endeavoring to check their progress, by leaning too far over the dash-board, he fell to the ground and the wagon passed over him; he survived but a short time.

BUILDING ASSOCIATIONS.—For the information of others, here or elsewhere, who may desire to from one of these associations, we publish the following from a communication in a recent number of the Johnstown Democrat showing the manner of their organization and working:—

A building association is a co-operative society, its object being to save money in small sums from the earnings of its members, with which to build or buy homes for them. These associations are organized under a general law passed by our legislature in April, 1859. Those who desire to make themselves fully conversant with that law must refer to the pamphlet laws for that year, my object being, not to go into details, but simply to convey to your readers an idea of the general principles of these societies.

The stock of a building association is limited by law to two thousand five hundred shares, of two hundred dollars per share. The holder of stock is required to pay one dollar per month on each share held by him, until the stock comes to par, or, in other words, until each share is worth two hundred dollars. Of course, if the money was not improved it would require exactly two hundred months, or sixteen and two third years, to bring the stock to par; but by the method of loaning the funds, adopted by these associations, this period is reduced to from eight to eleven years.

Now as to the method of disposing of the funds. Let us suppose we have organized and set in motion an association which has disposed of two thousand shares of stock. It is plain from what has been already stated that we would, during the first month, receive into the treasury two thousand dollars. We now loan this amount of money at 6 per cent interest to some member to build or buy a house, taking a mortgage upon the property to secure the payment of the loan. The money is disposed of at auction, at the monthly meeting of the association, and the member who will pay the the largest bonus for its use and give good security for its repayment, gets it. A will perhaps give a bonus of twenty-five per cent, and if no one else will give more, A gets the loan. If he owns a single share, he can get two hundred dollars less the bonus of twenty-five per cent., or one hundred and fifty dollars. We will suppose that he owns ten shares. In that case he can take the whole two thousand dollars less the bonus, or fifteen hundred dollars. With this he purchases a house, giving the association a mortgage thereon, as security. He now simply continues to pay one dollar per month on each share as before, paying also the interest on two thousand dollars at six per cent., and whenever the stock of the association comes to par his debt is paid, and the mortgage held by the association is returned to him. At this time also, those members who have not borrowed, receive two hundred dollars per share for every share of the stock held by them. In this manner the whole has already been said that the greater the competition for loans among the members, the larger will be bonuses offered, and the sooner will the stock come to par, and hence, a man who is outbid, and thus disappointed in securing a loan, has the consolation of knowing that his money is being enhanced, and the larger the bonus his neighbor pays the sooner his own stock will reach par. This institution has peculiar advantages for men of small means, and for working men who are able to save a few dollars from their monthly earnings. It promotes economy by inducing men to save who would not otherwise do so, and enables them to build or buy property with but little more than their annual outlay for rent. For those who do not wish to build, it is the best and safest saving bank in the world. The reason that it is such a desirable means of saving, is that it is purely co-operative, or mutual, there being no preferred class to consume a portion of the earnings of the depositors' money. In an ordinary savings bank the proprietors or stockholders, make a margin on the earnings of the depositor's funds, but in a building association the depositor is also the stockholder, and he gets all that his money earns. In short, a building association is an institution that needs only to be understood to be appreciated, and my object in this communication is simply to call attention to the matter, and promote inquiry.

THE BELL RINGERS.—The Peak, Sr., family, of Bell Ringers gave an exhibition in this place on Thursday evening last. They had a large audience to greet them—in fact, the largest ever assembled in Yonter's hall. Their performance was good, but too much "Jeppo" was mixed up with the solid part of the entertainment to suit our fancy. In this connection we may add, that we think the manner of applauding now in vogue among audiences, is unnecessary and often provoking and insulting; but if people will applaud a performance, we hope in the future, that those who like the solid part of an entertainment will applaud as lustily as those who like the funny, so that those who visit our town will not think that our citizens only care for the foolish and nonsensical.

Powder Explosion.

One Man killed and another Mortally Wounded.—A sad accident occurred at Matilda Furnace, near Mt. Union, this county, on Wednesday last. Two men named John Dolan and Patriel Sloan, had gone into an ore mine near the Furnace, carrying lamps. They were stooping over a box containing powder, when a spark from one of the lamps fell into the powder, and an explosion immediately ensued, and Dolan was instantly killed, and Sloan received such injuries that he is not expected to live. They were both horribly burned and mangled by the powder. Dolan's remains were interred in the Catholic graveyard of this place on Sunday last. He was about 28 years of age; Sloan is about the same age.

WHAT DOES IT MEAN?—It is truly surprising the amount of candy that is eaten by our juveniles, on the street, at the fireside, and even in bed; and we have heard it said that there are a few certain individuals who can't listen to a good sermon, or feel sort of good all over, without chewing candy. This may surprise some of our readers, but that surprise will be abated somewhat when we tell them that said candy is manufactured by Summers & Reilly, of this place, and they are constantly furnishing these sweetmeats of all kinds, in large and small quantities, to dealers here and elsewhere, at less than city rates.

Narrow Escape.

Robert Mattern, a little son of Mr. John W. Mattern, of this borough, had a narrow escape with his life on Tuesday last. The little fellow attempted to cross the track in front of a hand-car which was in motion, but before he got across he was struck by the car, and fell down, his head striking one of the wheels in the fall, and bruising him badly. He is recovering.

RACHEL BAHN'S POEMS.—These poems were written under circumstances of a peculiar character, and are the product of a mind trained in the school of more than ordinary affliction. During a period of eighteen years the writer was confined to a bed of sickness; her disease being a spinal affection, disabling her from walking or even assuming an erect position on her couch of affliction. What renders her condition still more painful, is the fact that both her parents, whom she ardently loved, and who always faith fully provided for her wants, were, in the providence of God, removed by the hand of death.

Being thus left to herself, with an affectionate sister as her only companion, and secluded from all personal intercourse with society at large, she devoted herself, as she had previously done, to the reading of useful books—books of devotion and science—and to the composition of prose and poetry in both the English and German languages, with a zeal and pertinacity truly astonishing. As the different subjects on which the poems treat, have been a source of rich consolation to the writer in her affliction, the hope is indulged that they will prove equally beneficial to others, in similar circumstances.

These Poems are for sale at Lewis' Book Store. Price $1.75.

And rendering it dark and glossy. No other compound possesses the peculiar properties which so exactly suit the various conditions of the human hair. The use of this oil as a hair dresser has been universal in every section of the country in the Spanish Main for centuries.—No preparation of art could give that elegant luxuriance and abundance of hair which have so often been the admiration of travelers in Spain. This oil is highly and delicately perfumed, forming an article unrivaled in excellence and upon which the Spanish people for many years have set its seal of enduring approval.

McGUIRE'S
